

Pleasant tale of winter

"The Winter's Tale" was pleasantly told by the Brisbane Repertory Theatre at the Albert Hall last night.

The producer, Daphne Roemer, elected to play it with Spartan simplicity of setting.

Dorothy Wheller played the high spirited, sharp-tongued Paulina with real fire.

Joseph Holt improved during the evening as King Leontes, and was better in sorrow than in anger.

His opposite number, Ian Neil, King Polixenes, was effective, if somewhat pontifical. Betty Ross was a pleasing Hermione.

Suggestion: Father Time should remove the maker's label from his scythe.
